Your financial support will ensure that the front-line professionals working to protect the rights of our most vulnerable populations are able participate, share, and learn the tools for success, regardless of their ability to pay.

Now in its 12th year, the Fair Housing + Civil Rights Conference remains true to the original mission: to provide professional development opportunities at no cost to those working every day to advance the rights and protections of our neighbors and stay current on the pressing issues and challenges facing our communities.

Offered free-of-charge for attendees, the workshops and plenary sessions cover leadership competencies, legal updates, and professional development opportunities vital to the success of current and future drivers of change. The 500+ attendees return to their jobs reinvigorated and ready to share new ideas and strategies with co-workers and their community partners.
